

Islamic Folklore

The Tales of Seven Earth & The White Earth Realm

Muhammad Hamzah Sakura Ryuki

Islamic Folklore
The Tales of Seven Earth &
The White Earth Realm

by

Muhammad Hamzah Sakura Ryuki

2025

Publishing
2025

Copyright @Muhammad Hamzah Sakura Ryuki

Prologue

The city of Medina was silent in the stillness of the night. The Prophet Muhammad SAW sat with his companions when a verse from the heavens was revealed:

“It is Allah SWT who has created seven heavens and of the earth, the like of them...”

(The Noble Quran 65:12).

Chapter 1: The Revelation of Seven Earths

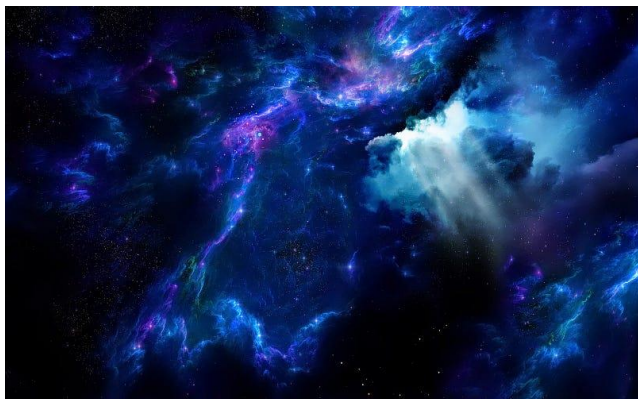

Ibn ‘Abbas, one of the most learned companions, reflected upon this verse. “O Messenger of Allah SWT,” he asked, “what are these seven Earths?”

The Prophet ﷺ remained silent for a moment before speaking, “Each Earth has its own creation, its own people, its own decree of Allah SWT.”

The companions whispered among themselves. Could there be others—beings unlike them—across worlds unknown? It was a mystery that only Allah SWT knew, yet the Prophet’s words hinted at something greater than they had ever imagined.

That night, Medina’s sky seemed vaster, and their thoughts drifted beyond the Earth they called home.

Chapter 2: The Secret Realms Beneath

As the sun rose, Ibn Mas'ud, a devoted companion, approached Ibn 'Abbas. "What do you make of this verse?" he asked.

Ibn 'Abbas sighed. "I have heard that in every Earth, there is a Prophet like our Prophet, an Adam like our Prophet Adam AS, a Noah like our Prophet Noah AS."

The idea unsettled them both. Seven realms, each with its own history and people—how vast was the dominion of Allah! They recalled the hadith of the Prophet ﷺ: "Whoever usurps a handspan of land unjustly, Allah will make him sink down through the seven Earths."

Could these realms be layered beneath them? Or were they separate worlds in distant corners of the universe? None could say for sure.

But they knew one truth—Allah’s creation was beyond human comprehension.

That day, the companions looked at the ground beneath them differently, wondering what lay beyond their sight.

Chapter 3: The Prophet's Vision of the White Earth Realm

One evening, the Prophet ﷺ noticed his companions in deep thought. “What troubles you?” he asked.

“We ponder Allah’s creation,” they replied.

The Prophet ﷺ smiled. “Think of His creation, but do not dwell on His essence, lest you fall into confusion.”

Then, pointing towards the west, he said, “Beyond your sight, there is a White Earth. The sun is forty times brighter there, and its people have never gone astray.”

The companions looked towards the horizon in awe. Could such a world exist? What kind of beings lived there?

One among them asked, “Where is Shaytan among them?”

The Prophet ﷺ replied, “They do not know of his creation.”

Their hearts trembled at the thought. A world untouched by sin—was this part of the seven Earths spoken of in The Noble Quran?

Chapter 4: A World Without Prophet Adam AS

The companions were astonished. “O Messenger of Allah, are they humans? Are they the children of Prophet Adam AS?”

The Prophet ﷺ shook his head. “No. They do not even know of Adam.”

Silence fell over the gathering. A people who did not know the father of mankind? How could this be?

Ali ibn Abi Talib, known for his wisdom, pondered aloud, “If they do not know Shaytan and they do not know Adam, then they must live in a state of pure obedience to Allah SWT, untouched by trials.”

The thought was both beautiful and humbling. The White Earth was a place free of evil and temptation.

No whispers of the devil, no struggle against sin—just eternal submission to the One Creator.

As the night deepened, the companions were left in awe of the unseen worlds beyond their own.

Chapter 5: The Endless Dominion of Allah SWT (God)

In the days that followed, the companions continued to reflect upon the Prophet’s ﷺ words.

Abu Dharr al-Ghifari, known for his deep spirituality, asked, “O Messenger of Allah SWT, if these realms exist, will we ever see them?”

The Prophet ﷺ responded, “On the Day of Judgment, the earth will be a white plain, like pure silver, with no landmarks.” (Sahih Muslim 2790)

The companions understood—this world would be reshaped, but beyond it lay other realms, waiting in the knowledge of Allah SWT.

The Noble Quran had spoken of “seven Earths”, and the Prophet ﷺ had confirmed their existence.

What else remained unseen in the vast expanse of creation? They knew now that their world was only a small part of something far greater.

Chapter 6: The Limit of Human Knowledge

One day, a traveler from Yemen visited Medina and asked Ibn ‘Abbas, “O Companion of the Prophet, tell me of the seven Earths.”

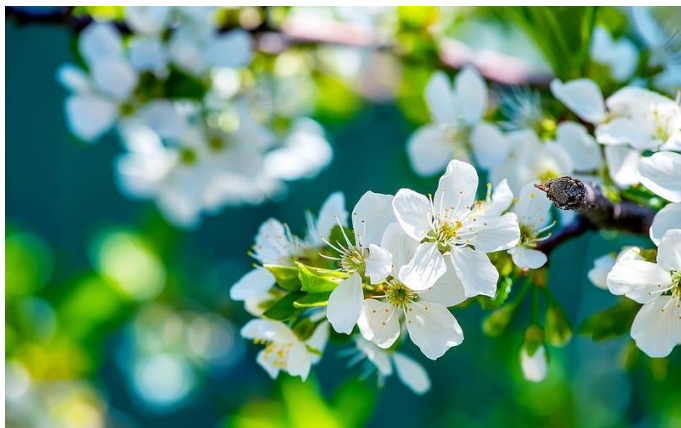

Ibn ‘Abbas replied, “They exist as The Noble Quran says, but their nature is unknown to us.”

“But are there truly beings in them?” the man pressed.

Ibn ‘Abbas thought of the Prophet’s words. He recalled the White Earth and the beings who never went astray. “We only know what our Prophet has told us”, he said. “Beyond that, it is with Allah SWT.”

The traveler nodded, accepting the mystery. Not all knowledge was meant to be uncovered. Some truths were hidden in the divine wisdom of Allah SWT, waiting for the time when they would be revealed.

Chapter 7: The Veil of the Unseen

Years later, as Islam spread across lands, scholars and believers continued to reflect on the seven Earths and the White Earth. Some sought it in the stars, others in the depths of the earth. But no one truly knew its location.

As the Prophet ﷺ had said, “Think of Allah’s creation, but do not think of His essence.”

The seven Earths remained a mystery, and the White Earth, untouched by sin, remained beyond the reach of mankind. But one truth remained clear—Allah’s creation was vast, and His knowledge encompassed all things.

The believers knew that one day, on the Day of Judgment, the unseen would be made seen, and the mysteries of the seven Earths would be unveiled.

Until then, they bowed in submission, knowing that Allah SWT is the Lord of all worlds—seen and unseen.....

Author Bio

*The Nameless Green Bamboo Swordsman from Forgotten
Land of Illiyin*

